Manager comment

VNL's share price declined 8 percent to USD0.41 as at 30 November 2012, from a closing price of USD0.44 as at 31 October 2012. During November, VNL repurchased and cancelled 1.16 million shares. To date, VNL has cancelled nearly 17 million shares representing 3.4 percent of the Company's 499,967,622 Ordinary Shares in issue prior to the beginning of the share buyback program.

Vietnam's National Assembly ended its last meeting of 2012 outlining the direction for the economy in 2013 which includes a continued goal of stabilizing the macro economy, controlling inflation, and aiming for higher growth. "Breaking the iceberg" in the real estate market is one of the most imperative tasks for 2013 with responsibility given to the Ministry of Construction. The State Bank of Vietnam is also tasked to continue with cleaning up the banking and financial sector throughout the year, ensuring a healthier banking system going forward which should help create liquidity in the property market.

In November, the residential property sector continued to be affected by limited buy side demand from the mass market. Expectation of further price reductions, doubts about the financial capability of developers to complete projects, and nervousness about the state of the economy are among key considerations deterring buyers. Financing is gradually becoming less expensive and more available as banks reduce lending rates to 15 percent with the potential for additional reductions. In the commercial property sector, there is evidence of some activity from foreign and domestic investors looking to acquire assets in Ho Chi Minh City and Hanoi. The perception is that current market valuations represent a good time to enter; however only a few of these deals have progressed or been completed.

VNL has been working on several pipeline divestments over the past few months and continues to make progress in achieving the conditions precedent (CPs) which are primarily Government authority licensing and approvals that are to reflect the entity of new investors. We anticipate these CPs to be finalised in January 2013 for select projects.

On 21 November 2012, VNL held an EGM whereby shareholders supported both recommendations put forth by the Board regarding the continuation of the Company. As a result the Special Resolution, which called for the continuation of the Company as presently constituted, was not passed and the Ordinary Resolution to restructure the Company was passed with a two-thirds approval rate. The Ordinary Resolution establishes the framework to restructure the Company including changes to the Company's investment strategy, distribution policy, investment manager's remuneration and improvements in corporate governance.

Fixed income

Momentum from October continued into the primary fixed income market throughout November, as a result of ample liquidity in the banking system and persistent low credit growth. In total, USD705 million worth of government and government sponsored bonds was issued during November, an increase of 80 percent over October. As a result, yields declined between 60 - 70bps. For the remainder of 2012, demand for bonds is expected to remain high.

In November, trading activity in the secondary market for government and government sponsored bonds reached USD708 million, an increase of 91 percent from October. Of the total amount traded, 80 percent came from bonds with a tenor of 3 years and below. According to data compiled by Bloomberg, bond yields have declined between 50 - 60bps at the short-end to the yield curve.

Macroeconomic update

Vietnam's CPI increased just 0.5 percent in November, bringing year to date inflation to 6.5 percent.

During the month of November, Vietnam's consumer price index (CPI) rose by just 0.5 percent from the previous month, far less than in October (0.9 percent) and September (2.2 percent). As a result, year to date CPI is now up 6.5 percent. The much lower than expected inflation numbers was a result of a 0.1 percent decline in food and food stuff prices, which accounts for nearly 40 percent of the overall basket of goods used to calculate the index. However, leading the way again, was a 5.2 percent price increase in healthcare services, which compared with a year ago was up 45 percent.

HSBC's PMI reached 50.5 in November, indicating the potential for an increase in production.

The Purchasing Managers Index (PMI), a reflection of future production plans, as calculated by HSBC, rose from 48.7 in October to 50.5 in November. The increase is small but notably is a change in direction for expected national output. It was assisted by large discounts offered by businesses to sell excess merchandise over the past several months, which has translated into a pick-up in market demand. The index climbed over 50, indicating an expectation for output increases going forward.

Credit growth for the year has reached only 4.2 percent.

With inflation moderating faster than expected, interest rates are moving down accordingly. Additionally, with a continued weakness in demand, businesses are not borrowing as much and therefore, not placing any added pressure on lending rates to rise. However, The State Bank of Vietnam (SBV) continued its policy of promoting credit growth with limited success. As at 20 November 2012, credit growth for the year reached 4.2 percent while growth in M2 and deposits have reached 15.3 and 16.0 percent, respectively.
